Why are your study habits different from those of your friends? Why do you seem to learn faster in some classes while more slowly in others? One reason you may not know is that people have different learning types. Scientists say there are three different learning types: Visual (视觉型), Auditory (听觉型) and Kinesthetic (动觉型).

Visual learners learn best by seeing. If you seem to easily remember information from pictures, graphs (图表) and videos, you are probably a visual learner. You're not good at copying down what the teacher says in class. Never mind. You can draw graphs or pictures instead, if you find that works better for you.

Auditory learners learn best by hearing. If you seem to easily remember things by hearing them, then you are probably an auditory learner. You must listen carefully while the teacher is speaking because it's the easiest way for you to learn. Sometimes you may find that taking notes stops you from listening carefully. After class, you can write down what you remember or borrow your friends' notes to copy.

Kinesthetic learners learn best by doing. If you seem to learn best by working with your hands, you are probably a kinesthetic learner. Taking notes by writing can make you pay close attention to information as you receive it. Of course, you can learn best by making full use of labs or other class activities.

Hope you learn better by knowing what your personal learning type is.

38. There are _____ different learning types according to the passage.
 A. two B. three C. four D. five
39. Jude can remember the words of a song quickly by listening to it once or twice. She might be a/an _____ according to the passage.
 A. auditory learner B. visual learner
 C. strange learner D. usual learner

40. Kinesthetic learners learn best by _____.

A. remembering information from videos

B. listening to teachers in class

C. drawing graphs or pictures

D. doing things with their hands

41. The best title of this passage may be “_____”.

A. Study Habits

B. Ways to Study

C. Learning Types

D. Reasons to Learn

Some time ago, an old businessman had a large store in Boston. He wanted a boy to work for him, and he put an advertisement in the newspapers. The next morning, many boys came to the old man's office, asking for the job.

There was a post (柱子) by his desk, and there was a nail (钉子) in it. He took a walking-stick and said, "Everyone has three chances. If anyone can hit that nail on the head with this stick more than once, I will give him the job."

The boys thought it was very easy. They all tried, but nobody could make it. So the old man said, "I'm sorry I can't take any of you," and they left.

He kept the advertisement in the papers, and the next morning many more boys came, and among them he saw a thin boy who had been there the day before. The boy hit the nail successfully for three times. The old man felt surprised and asked how he did that.

"Yes," said the boy, "I failed yesterday, but I thought that if I kept on trying a while, I could do it. So I went home and practiced hitting a nail with a stick till I could do it, and I got up very early this morning, and tried again."

The old man said, "You are the boy for me," and gave him the job. Whatever the boy had to do, he tried to do his best. It was not very long before he became the best clerk in the store.

One possible version:

Hello, my dear friends. As we all know, reading is very important to us. It can not only make us know about the world but also help us relax ourselves. To make people love reading, I have some good advice.

First, we can build lots of small libraries in the city. Second, if new books can be introduced often, more people will be interested in reading. Third, if the seats in the libraries are very comfortable, people will enjoy reading there a lot.

I hope my advice can work and more people will keep reading.
